

"Every skin deserves to be flawless!"

We would like to have the opportunity of introducing providers to a host of effective corrective skin care solutions for your global patient. The goal of our courses is to demonstrate how to lower risk factors such as post-inflammatory hyperpigmentation when administering a combination of peels on global skins.

Skincare is essential to the health and well being of an individual. A good skincare program begins with a facial treatment designed to restore balance to the skin. One of the most popular treatments is chemical peeling. It is a simple exfoliation that can allow healthy skin to appear, improve the texture of the skin, while treating common skin conditions such as melasma, psoriasis, rosacea, acne, etc

There are many peeling agents on the market. These agents have various concentrations and formulations. While the most popular are AHAs and BHAs, there are combination and blended peeling agents that when executed will promote a light to heavy desquamation of the epidermal layers. The benefit of pre-conditioning the skin properly; layering a combination of peeling agents with topical actives; and, suggesting post peel products will result in a deeper penetration of beneficial ingredients.

Global Skin Solutions has a unique blend of therapeutic peeling agents formulated for all skin types. Since many skins are not candidates of an IPL or laser resurfacing, our peels are ideal for the treatment of hyperpigmentation, acne, shallow acne scars, etc. We combine AHAs, BHAs and other compatible ingredients to significantly lighten or correct lesions resistant to other peeling formulas. Example: darker skins are known to have excessive layers of keratinized skin cells. Coupled with hyperpigmentation, results can be challenging. The use of a combination or blended agent will help to disrupt the keratin bond holding these cells together. Within a few days, these cells slough off and the condition is greatly improved. These peels have been tested and recommended by Toni C. Stockton, board certified dermatologist specializing in Ethno Dermatology.
